

Instruments of the Orchestra

The String Family

Instruments in the string family have four strings. They can be played using a bow or plucked using fingers. The note is changed by pressing down on the string in different places on the neck of the instrument.

Label the instruments from the string family.

Instruments of the Orchestra

The String Family - Answers

Instruments in the string family have four strings. They can be played using a bow or plucked using fingers. The note is changed by pressing down on the string in different places on the neck of the instrument.

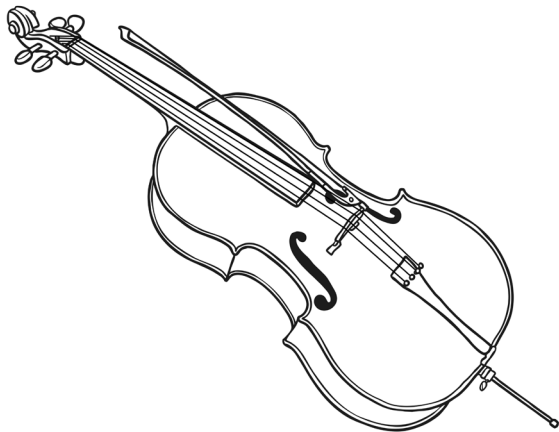

Label the instruments from the string family.

violin

viola

cello

double bass

Instruments of the Orchestra

The Woodwind Family

Instruments in the woodwind family aren't all made of wood, although most used to be. They are played by blowing into them. Notes are changed by pressing on holes or keys.

Label the instruments from the woodwind family.

Instruments of the Orchestra

The Woodwind Family - Answers

Instruments in the woodwind family aren't all made of wood, although most used to be. They are played by blowing into them. Notes are changed by pressing on holes or keys.

Label the instruments from the woodwind family.

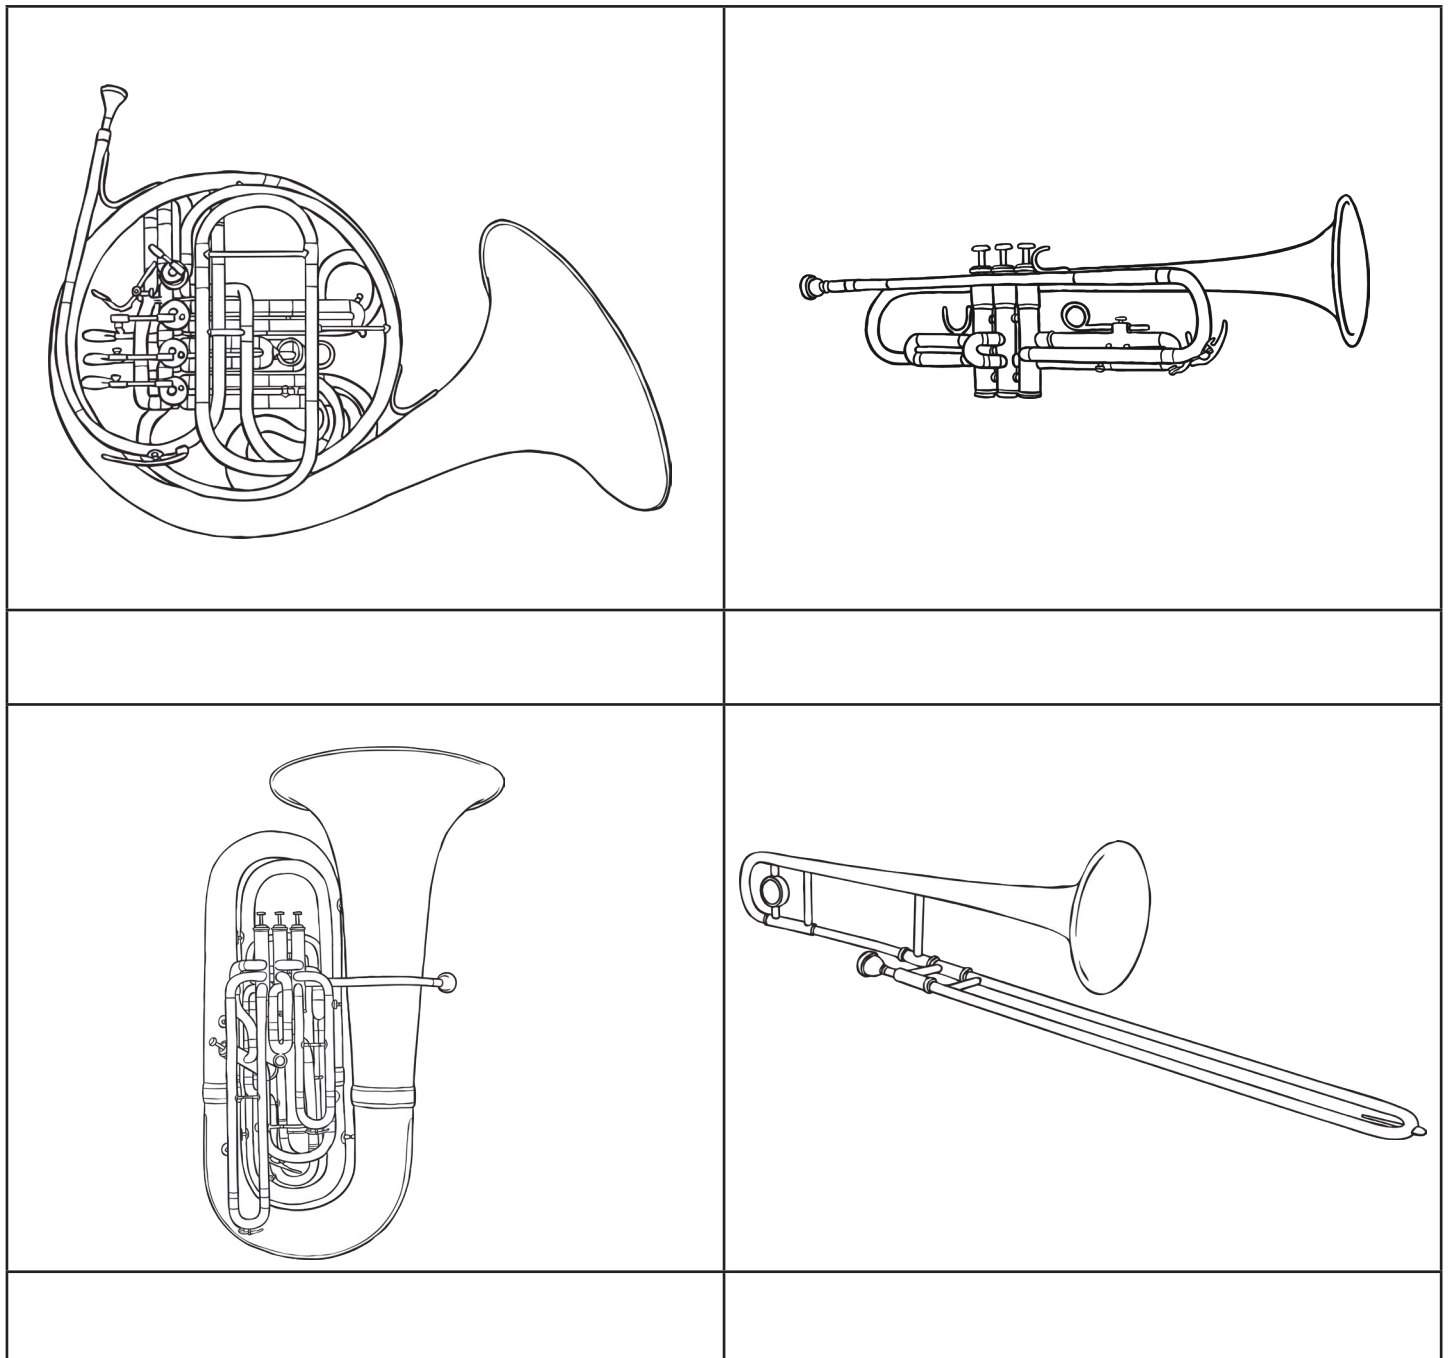

clarinet	bassoon

oboe	flute

piccolo	saxophone

Instruments of the Orchestra

The Brass Family

Instruments in the brass family are usually made of brass. They are played by blowing into them while vibrating your lips against the mouthpiece. Notes are changed by changing the shape of your mouth, pressing down on keys or (with the trombone) moving the slider.

Label the instruments from the brass family.

Instruments of the Orchestra

The Brass Family - Answers

Instruments in the brass family are usually made of brass. They are played by blowing into them while vibrating your lips against the mouthpiece. Notes are changed by changing the shape of your mouth, pressing down on keys or (with the trombone) moving the slider.

Label the instruments from the brass family.

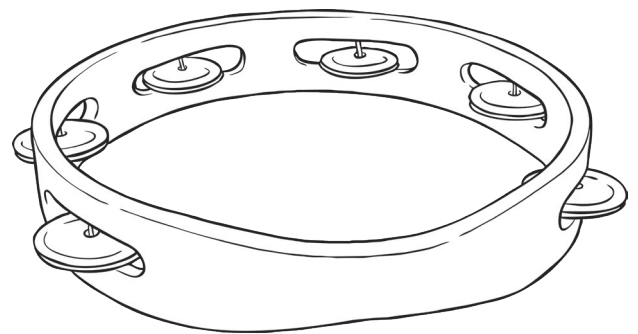

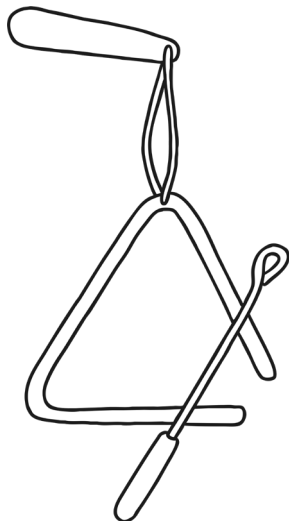

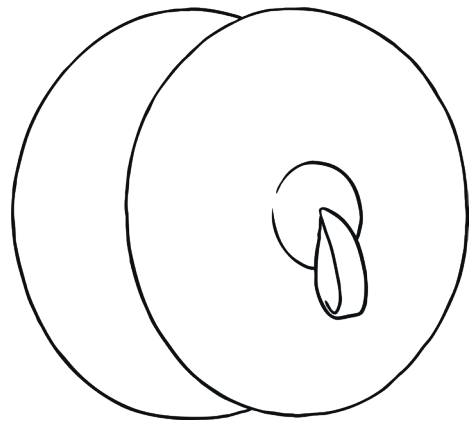

french horn	trumpet

tuba	trombone

Instruments of the Orchestra

The Percussion Family

Instruments in the percussion family are played by hitting them or scraping them with beaters. A piano is also a percussion instrument because when you press a key, a soft hammer inside the piano hits a string which vibrates.

Label the instruments from the percussion family.

Instruments of the Orchestra

The Percussion Family - Answers

Instruments in the percussion family are played by hitting them or scraping them with beaters. A piano is also a percussion instrument because when you press a key, a soft hammer inside the piano hits a string which vibrates.

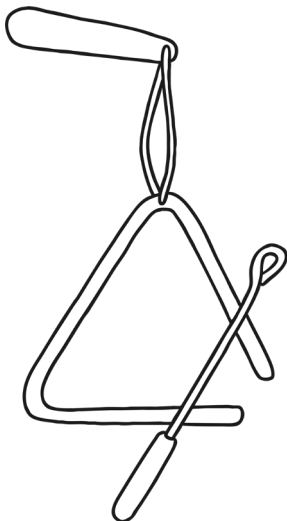

Label the instruments from the percussion family.

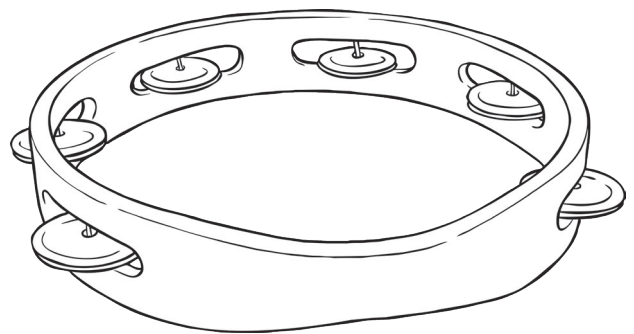

timpani/kettle drum

cymbal

triangle

tambourine